The Contract (The Story of Penelope Hearst Book 1) Annouk Delacroix

"My story is the texture of every romance in the world, but my life is not a novel."

When Penelope's mother dies, her godmother, the Duchess of Melfort, rushes to help and provides Penny with a handsome yearly allowance and an ample portion of ten-thousand pounds, which may either be used as her dowry or will be at her free disposal by the time she reaches twenty-one. A contract is drawn up to manifest the conditions of this provision. Yet, there are certain clauses in said contract of which Penny is not aware... and as she grows into a beautiful young woman, she attracts the attention of many an eligible lord. But there is one who does not only find her pretty, but who also wants a return on his investment.

A beautiful and spunky miss, aristocratic admirers, a darkly handsome duke, love and desire... but the realities of sparkling balls and great houses is not as pretty as the novelists would make you believe... and young, free-spirited and vivacious Penny Hearst must learn too soon what it means to take on her role in society.

Penny's story is divided into three novellettes of which this is the first.

The second novelette should be available by December 24th
