Australian Serial Killers (True Crimes Book 55) Andrew Alexander

During the first six decades of the twentieth century, the global number of new serial killers identified each decade remained roughly constant. However, in the 1970's, 1980's and 1990's, the numbers rose dramatically, before declining at the start of the twenty-first century.

While the United States accounts for the vast majority of the world's serial killers, the pattern was repeated in other countries with a tradition of producing their own serial killers. Thus, the last three decades of the twentieth century also saw enormous increases in the numbers of serial killers operating within Australia, Columbia, France, Japan, Russia, South Africa, Spain and the United Kingdom.

Within Australia, the period 1970 to 2000 produced some of the country's most prolific and brutal serial killers, who warrant further investigation.

This 21,000 word review gives a detailed insight into lives and crimes of these vicious killers, as a study in its own right and as a stepping-stone to further research in the true crime genre.

Those covered include:

- David and Catherine Birnie
- John Bunting
- Bandali Debs
- Paul Denyer
- Peter Dupas
- Leonard Fraser
- John Glower
- Ivan Milat
